MARTIN TELLS DAR AMERICANS MUST DEFEND HERITAGE

Otherwise This Country
Will Go the Way of Czechoslovakia

TALKS TO DELEGATES

Peace Can Be Achieved
Only by A Strong
America

WASHINGTON, Apr. 23.—Unless America defends its heritage of freedom, "we shall go the way of the people of Czechoslovakia and other countries around which the iron curtain has been dropped," Senator Edward Martin (R., Pa.) told the delegates of the American Revolution yesterday.

"Communism is today the greatest disease poisoning the world," Martin declared in an address to 4000 delegates and members here for the society's 57th Continental Congress. "Yet there are knaves and misguided men and women who think it will bring them everlasting peace if they appease it and surrender to it."

Peace in the world can be achieved "only by a strong America," he told the congress. "We must remember this is no time for appeasement."

"We want peace in the world. We want the people of the world to understand and enjoy liberty. This can be accomplished only by a strong America—strong spiritually, strong financially, and with a strong national defense."

Martin urged the DAR to spread the message "that we live in a land of priceless privilege." He said the heritage of freedom can be lost only by ourselves. "The moment we fail to defend it, we shall lose it," he added. "People are living under the yoke of dictatorships today because they did not realize the great value of freedom."

Sixty mothers and daughters gathered about a festive board in the Sunday School room of First Baptist Church, last evening. The occasion was the first mother-daughter dinner arranged by the Social Circle. Baked ham was the piece de resistance.

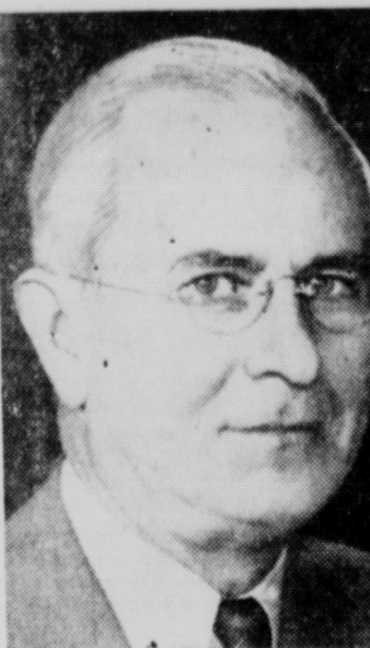

Programs at each place were in the form of a mother, the various hues adding gaiety to the occasion.

With Mrs. Percy Earl serving as general chairman, and Mrs. Roland Zepp as chairman of the program committee, the following numbers were much enjoyed: Group singing; welcome to mother, Mrs. Frank Smith; vocal solo, Mrs. Leonard Dyer; piano duo, Mrs. I. L. Clark and Ruth Ann Clark; piano solo, Miss Elizabeth Marshall; a skit staged by 10 girls as a tribute to mother. In the latter Mrs. Fred Gould as "Mother," had a place of honor in a large picture frame. Two motion picture films were also shown.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

The United States Steel Corporation rejected yesterday a CIO demand for a wage increase and announced a price cut, totaling $25,000,000, on some products. The company's assertion that both moves were taken to combat inflation was ridiculed by CIO President Philip Murray. The price cut more than wiped out the increase that had been put into effect recently and which had been deplored by President Truman.

The Senate passed by voice vote and sent to the House the Taft-Elliender-Wagner Housing Bill with its large program of Government building.

The confidential loyalty file on Dr. Edward W. Condon was demanded from the Administration "forthwith" by the House. The vote was 300 to 29. President Truman challenged the House to try to get the papers. Mr. Truman sent to the Senate the nomination of W. Averell Harriman, who as Secretary of Commerce refused to turn over the papers, to be Ambassador-at-Large for the European Recovery Program. He also sent to the Senate the nomination of Charles Sawyer to succeed Mr. Harriman in the Commerce Department.

SEVEN JUVENILES

Industry Here

SOME LOOT RETRIEVED

Seven boys, all juveniles, have been taken into custody by the police, who allege that the gang broke into and robbed the plant of the Bristol Processing Company, Jefferson avenue and Beaver street, and took considerable loot.

The boys range in age from 13 to 16. They are students in the public schools, five attending the eighth grade, one the tenth and one the ninth. One boy lives in the fifth ward, and the other six in the sixth ward.

The names are not given out for publication by the police, and neither is the name of one of the robbery victims of the gang.

They will be held for juvenile court but at present have been released in custody of their parents.

In the loot taken from the Bristol Processing plant was three electric motors, one of three horsepower, one of one horsepower and one of one-quarter horsepower. Ninety sheep skins partly processed for mouton were stolen, as well as two small hand trucks used in moving material about the plant.

The skins and two of the motors have been recovered.

The gang also robbed numerous automobiles in the vicinity of Fond and Fillmore streets, $300 in cash and a revolver was also allegedly taken by one boy of the group from an unidentified victim.

Police, in investigating the robbery at the Bristol Processing Company traced, by means of the wheel marks of one of the small hand trucks, the garage in which the loot was hidden in the sixth ward.

State Police Officer Kutney, Chief of Police Jones and Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo worked on the case.

A JUDGE ON UNIONS

The $20,000 fine on John L. Lewis, and the $1,400,000 fine against his United Mine Workers, do not mark the end of coal troubles in the United States.

It is only one more chapter. The big fight is due when the current contracts run out June 30. Lewis and the miners are out-of-pocket—unless they can persuade the Supreme Court to wipe out the fines. But in other respects they may have the best of the situation.

As a result of the recent stoppage, neither the industry nor the people in general will be able to stand as much of a tie-up as they otherwise might have afforded next June 30. The fact is that a good deal of coal had been "stockpiled" prior to the recent walk-out, and the bulk of this now has been used up. This may make quite a difference if a new strike is called.

With reference to the pension dispute, the hocus-pocus "compromise" worked out at the last minute by Mr. Lewis and some friends in Congress, gave the miners most of what they had been demanding, in spite of the fact that some of these objectives appear to be prohibited under the Taft-Hartley Act.

A good many ex-miners, retired for a couple of years, will start receiving pensions without themselves or their companies ever having put up a cent for that purpose. The cost will be borne by the companies which went into the program in good faith, thinking the law meant what it said—that non-participants wouldn't receive the pensions. The result is that the pension fund at present levels won't carry this extra freight, that more money will have to be found, and therefore that the price of coal will be boosted again.

The basic situation, with all its dangers, still remains. One man holds a monopoly of the coal-producing capacity of this nation. Whether by "code" or by thought-transference, Lewis can send the miners home from the mines any time he wishes. Neither law, government nor courts have yet been able to protect the rights of the whole people against the power of this individual.

That Mr. Lewis should feel contempt for a social and governmental structure which lets him "get away" with this sort of thing is only natural. Merely fining him, from time to time, a tiny portion of the huge damage he is doing to the nation's economy, as punishment for that contempt, isn't meeting the situation.

Nobody knows this better than Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough, the judge who now has twice fined Lewis and the Mine Workers for contempt of court.

Judge Goldsborough said:

"If this court was to use its individual judgement it would impose a prison sentence."

He stopped with the fines simply because, as he had said in advance, the Federal attorneys were in a position to know more of the general situation than he was; and they merely asked for the fine. Whether they knew what they were doing remains to be seen. Fines a year ago didn't prevent the recent walk-out.

No more able summary of the issue which must soon be faced by this country, whether labor bosses or the whole people are to rule, has ever been made than that of Judge Goldsborough in outlining his decision.

Park Commission Considers
The Spot Dangerous
For Bathers

WAS USED BY MANY

Bathing at Washington Crossing Park, on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware River, has been discontinued as a result of action taken by the Park Commission.

The Commission adopted a resolution which pointed out that the site of the bathing was a particularly dangerous and unsatisfactory one, with strong currents across a river-bottom strewn with large and small stones. The purity of the water is open to question much of the bathing season. Also, the resolution said, maintenance of a bathing beach in a park intended as a historic shrine was considered inappropriate.

The larger number of the users of the bathing beach are from Trenton and other communities in New Jersey.

The former bathhouse will be turned into a shelter for the use of the throngs of picnickers who make use of the Park's facilities at this point.

N. J., It Is Revealed

GRADUATION PROJECT

MORRISVILLE, Apr. 23.—The census just completed in Morrisville borough limits by Morrisville high school pupils shows a population of 6,049. The canvass was carried out by the problems of democracy class. Two months was required to complete the census which was directed by James E. Wood, of the high school faculty.

A map had been made by John Gontar, another faculty member. There were 60 seniors who participated.

The results show that 1,352 residents are employed in Trenton, N. J., and 561 in the borough, with 156 working in other places. Thus 22 per cent of the population earns its living in Trenton, 15 per cent in Morrisville and two per cent elsewhere.

The development of the first ward is one of the highlights of the census, for it now has 1,843 residents as compared to the big third ward's leading 1,905 persons. Ninety-five young men and women are now attending college.

Results of the poll, ward by ward, follow: First ward, population, 1,843; college students, 25; working in Trenton, 395; and in Morrisville, 252. Second ward, population, 1,123; college students, 14; working in Trenton, 212; in Morrisville, 344. Third ward, population, 1,905; college students, 51; working in Trenton, 475; and Morrisville, 183. Fourth ward, population, 1,178; college students, 5; working in Trenton, 270; in Morrisville, 182.

Addresses Rotarians
At Weekly Session

Ray Riggs, member of the Extension Service of Pennsylvania State College, spoke on the subject of "Training of Supervisors" when he addressed Bristol Rotarians at the Elks' Home yesterday afternoon, pointing out that "supervisors are the sole connecting link between management and those who do the work, and as such should be well trained so that efficiency results and production costs can be sheared."

"Although training of supervisors has been very weak, industry today seems to be training conscious, and the costs of training are being more than offset by the resulting efficiency and greater production," the speaker declared.

Riggs outlined the survey technique used by the Pennsylvania State College in determining the need for supervisors training for different industries, pointing out that the services are rendered by the College without charge.

"Training in many instances will place the supervisors in a position where they can increase both the quantity and quality of the work done at a lower production cost," Riggs said.

President E. Keller Fox was in charge of the meeting. Several guests were present to hear the speaker.

Still Much To Be Done

(By "The Stroller")
While considerable progress has been made in ridding Bristol of the winter's accumulation of dirt and debris, there is still much to be done.

Many of the streets have been cleaned by the borough authorities. Others are still to be cleaned.

Property owners have, in many instances, co-operated. There are still others who have not as yet showed any evidence of joining in the movement.

Vacant lot owners, with very few exceptions, have not done a thing. Several of these lots are still being used as common dumping grounds. This should stop and stop now.

We observe a spot just started along new Route 13, which is certainly an eyesore.

Property owners, the borough, Chamber of Commerce and others interested should get busy on a plan to improve the approach to Bristol over old Route 13, extending from Mill street to the Otter Creek bridge. This is one spot which is certainly in need of attention.

Peace Can Be Achieved
Only by A Strong
America

WASHINGTON, Apr. 23—Unless America defends its heritage of freedom, "we shall go the way of the people of Czechoslovakia and other countries around which the iron curtain has been dropped," Senator Edward Martin (R., Pa.) told the delegates of the American Revolution yesterday.

"Communism is today the greatest disease poisoning the world," Martin declared in an address to 400 delegates and members here for the society's 57th Continental Congress. "Yet there are knaves and misguided men and women who think it will bring them everlasting peace if they appease it and surrender to it."

Peace in the world can be achieved "only by a strong America," he told the congress. "We must remember this is no time for appeasement."

"We want peace in the world. We want the people of the world to understand and enjoy liberty. This can be accomplished only by a strong America—strong spiritually, strong financially, and with a strong national defense."

Martin urged the DAR to spread the message "that we live in a land of priceless privilege." He said the heritage of freedom can be lost only by ourselves. "The moment we fail to defend it, we shall lose it," he added. "People are living under the yoke of dictatorships today because they did not realize the great value of freedom."

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

The United States Steel Corporation rejected yesterday a CIO demand for a wage increase and announced a price cut, totaling $25,000,000, on some products. The company's assertion that both moves were taken to combat inflation was ridiculed by CIO President Philip Murray. The price cut more than wiped out the increase that had been put into effect recently and which had been deplored by President Truman.

The Senate passed by voice vote and sent to the House the Taft-Elliott-Wagner Housing Bill with its large program of Government building.

The confidential loyalty file on Dr. Edward U. Condon was demanded from the Administration "forthwith" by the House. The vote was 200 to 29. President Truman challenged the House to try to get the papers. Mr. Truman sent to the Senate the nomination of W. Averell Harriman, who as Secretary of Commerce refused to turn over the papers, to be Ambassador-at-Large for the European Recovery Program. He also sent to the Senate the nomination of Charles Sawyer to succeed Mr. Harriman in the Commerce Department.

SEVEN JUVENILES HELD FOR ROBBERY

Stole Skins, Hand Trucks and Motors From an Industry Here

SOME LOOT RETRIEVED

Seven boys, all juveniles, have been taken into custody by the police, who allege that the gang broke into and robbed the plant of the Bristol Processing Company, Jefferson avenue and Beaver street, and took considerable loot.

The boys range in age from 13 to 16. They are students in the public schools, five attending the eighth grade, one the tenth and one the ninth. One boy lives in the fifth ward, and the other six in the sixth ward.

The names are not given out for publication by the police, and neither is the name of one of the robbery victims of the gang. They will be held for juvenile court but at present have been released in custody of their parents.

In the loot taken from the Bristol Processing plant was three electric motors, one of three horsepower, one of one horsepower and one of one-quarter horsepower. Ninety sheep skins partly processed for mouton were stolen, as well as two small hand trucks used in moving material about the plant.

The skins and two of the motors have been recovered. The gang also robbed numerous automobiles in the vicinity of Fond and Fillmore streets, $300 in cash and a revolver was also allegedly taken by one boy of the group from an unidentified victim.

Police, in investigating the robbery at the Bristol Processing Company traced, by means of the wheel marks of one of the small hand trucks, the garage in which the loot was hidden in the sixth ward.

State Police Officer Kutney, Chief of Police Jones and Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo worked on the case.

A JUDGE ON UNIONS

The $20,000 fine on John L. Lewis, and the $1,400,000 fine against his United Mine Workers, do not mark the end of coal troubles in the United States.

It is only one more chapter. The big fight is due when the current contracts run out June 30. Lewis and the miners are out-of-pocket—unless they can persuade the Supreme Court to wipe out the fines. But in other respects they may have the best of the situation.

As a result of the recent stoppage, neither the industry nor the people in general will be able to stand as much of a tie-up as they otherwise might have afforded next June 30. The fact is that a good deal of coal had been "stockpiled" prior to the recent walk-out, and the bulk of this now has been used up. This may make quite a difference if a new strike is called.

With reference to the pension dispute, the hocus-pocus "compromise" worked out at the last minute by Mr. Lewis and some friends in Congress, gave the miners most of what they had been demanding, in spite of the fact that some of these objectives appear to be prohibited under the Taft-Hartley Act.

A good many ex-miners, retired for a couple of years, will start receiving pensions without themselves or their companies ever having put up a cent for that purpose. The cost will be borne by the companies which went into the program in good faith, thinking the law meant what it said—that non-participants wouldn't receive the pensions. The result is that the pension fund at present levels won't carry this extra freight, that more money will have to be found, and therefore that the price of coal will be boosted again.

The basic situation, with all its dangers, still remains. One man holds a monopoly of the coal-producing capacity of this nation. Whether by "code" or by thought-transference, Lewis can send the miners home from the mines any time he wishes. Neither law, government nor courts have yet been able to protect the rights of the whole people against the power of this individual.

That Mr. Lewis should feel contempt for a social and governmental structure which lets him "get away" with this sort of thing is only natural. Merely fining him, from time to time, a tiny portion of the huge damage he is doing to the nation's economy, as punishment for that contempt, isn't meeting the situation.

Nobody knows this better than Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough, the judge who now has twice fined Lewis and the Mine Workers for contempt of court.

Judge Goldsborough said:

"If this court was to use its individual judgement it would impose a prison sentence."

He stopped with the fines simply because, as he had said in advance, the Federal attorneys were in a position to know more of the general situation than he was; and they merely asked for the fine. Whether they knew what they were doing remains to be seen. Fines a year ago didn't prevent the recent walk-out.

No more able summary of the issue which must soon be faced by this country, whether labor bosses or the whole people are to rule, has ever been made than that of Judge Goldsborough in outlining his decision.

HALT BATHING AT WASHINGTON CROSSING

Park Commission Considers
The Spot Dangerous
For Bathers

WAS USED BY MANY

Bathing at Washington Crossing Park, on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware River, has been discontinued as a result of action taken by the Park Commission.

The Commission adopted a resolution which pointed out that the site of the bathing was a particularly dangerous and unsatisfactory one, with strong currents across a river-bottom strewn with large and small stones. The purity of the water is open to question much of the bathing season. Also, the resolution said, maintenance of a bathing beach in a park intended as a historic shrine was considered inappropriate.

The larger number of the users of the bathing beach are from Trenton and other communities in New Jersey.

The former bathhouse will be turned into a shelter for the use of the throngs of picnickers who make use of the Park's facilities at this point.

CENSUS SHOWS 6,049 IN MORRISVILLE BORO'

1,352 of That Number Is Employed in Trenton,
N. J., It Is Revealed

GRADUATION PROJECT

MORRISVILLE, Apr. 23—The census just completed in Morrisville borough limits by Morrisville high school pupils shows a population of 6,049. The canvass was carried out by the problems of democracy class. Two months was required to complete the census which was directed by James E. Wood, of the high school faculty.

A map had been made by John Gontar, another faculty member. There were 69 seniors who participated.

The results show that 1,352 residents are employed in Trenton, N. J., and 561 in the borough, with 156 working in other places. Thus 22 per cent of the population earns its living in Trenton, 15 per cent in Morrisville and two per cent elsewhere.

The development of the first ward is one of the highlights of the census, for it now has 1,843 residents as compared to the big third ward's leading 1,905 persons. Ninety-five young men and women are now attending college.

Results of the poll, ward by ward, follow: First ward, population, 1,843; college students, 25; working in Trenton, 395; and in Morrisville, 252. Second ward, population, 1,123; college students, 14; working in Trenton, 212; in Morrisville, 344. Third ward, population, 1,905; college students, 51; working in Trenton, 475; and in Morrisville, 183. Fourth ward, population, 1,178; college students, 5; working in Trenton, 270; in Morrisville, 182.

The poll will be used as part of the program planned for commencement exercises of the school at Robert Morris Field June 7. This year's class will be the 50th to graduate.

IT'S A MAD WORLD
Plato thought the ideal nation—or the ideal world—would be governed by philosophers. Dr. Carl A. Binger, one of the nation's leading psychiatrists has a slightly different idea. He would like to see the world governed by psychiatrists.
He may be right, at that. It's a mad world.
Actually Dr. Binger didn't say exactly that. He called upon psychiatrists to "roll up their sleeves" and take part in public affairs from the community level up to the United Nations. He said up, but he may have meant down.
"Despite our busy lives," he said, "we should sit on school boards, take part in town councils, and bring our influence to bear on medical education and public education and in industry."
Yes, there is room for more sanity, and more objectivity.
Psychiatrists are needed, said Dr. Binger, as troubleshooters in the U.N. They are needed in the State Department. This nation, as well as others, needs diplomats with more knowledge of psychiatry. The nation needs, he went on, more use of psychiatric principles in politics.
Undoubtedly psychiatry can help in these fields, but there is an acute shortage of psychiatrists. Perhaps they should do more, publicly, to pass on their basic viewpoint to the public. On its non-technical side, it is simple. It involves:
Understanding and respecting the individual.
Preserving your own integrity.
It calls for the objective application of these two principles.

CANNOT DO BOTH
Acting on the heels of the official forecast that the winter wheat crop will be 860,000,000 bushels this year, second highest in history, government food exporting authorities are working toward a higher goal of wheat shipments abroad. They hope now to export 100,000,000 more bushels of wheat before June 30 than was at first planned.
To do this they may be compelled to ask Congress to reverse a measure passed earlier requiring the administration to keep in this country a minimum reserve of 150,000,000 bushels of wheat.
Those who have heard farmers in the wheat country complain about their poor wheat prospects may wonder whether it is wise for this country to shoot the works in exports of wheat. There can be no assurance that official forecasts will be correct until the wheat is in the bins. Wheat growers have all too often seen adverse weather cut down expected yields by tens of millions of bushels after the wheat was headed out.
The government is talking about stepping up exports one day and proposing to stockpile wheat for a possible emergency the next. It cannot do both. If the bottoms of the wheat bins are scraped for export, the nation will be entirely dependent upon future crops. It will be weakened tremendously in any crisis that may arise if crop failures appear.

Inside Your Congress
—o—
Social Justice
—by—
SAMUEL B. PETTINGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

I want to ask two questions about "social justice." How much of it is moral? Will it promote the happiness of mankind?
Let us reduce the first question to simple terms. A robber holds up a rich man who made his money honestly by battling home runs, or by making a good radio, is the hold-up "social justice?"
Suppose the robber is well-to-do. He is a Robin Hood. What he steals from the rich he gives to the poor. He is a humanitarian with a gun.
Next, take direct violence out of the question. Here are three men on an island: two, poor, and one, rich—honestly so. They form a government, and hold a town meeting, where the majority rules. By a vote of 2 to 1, they tax away the rich man's wealth in order to distribute it to themselves. They elect a sheriff to collect.
Is this social justice? If so, what makes the joint act of two men moral when the act of one man is immoral? Force, or the threat of it, is behind both the vote and the hold-up.
On the other hand, Robinson Crusoe is alone on an island. He did not make the island, or its resources. He simply got there first. Two ship-wrecked sailors swim ashore. Crusoe tries to push them back into the sea. Here, plainly, is a different situation. They have the same right to live as Crusoe and are not taking anything that he made. Maybe the sailors would be morally justified in resisting.
But "social justice" now goes far beyond the redress of privilege, to an attack on success and private property. It now sanctifies socialism, and the leveling of society.
This puts some members of the Christian ministry in bad company. Dean Inge of England says: "Now that democracy has freed itself of salutary checks and balances, it stands revealed as a government by mass bribery, where the biggest bribers will usually be in power."
Read "Hunger and History," by E. Parmelee Prentice, published by the Constitution and Free Enterprise Foundation, 210 East 43rd St., New York City. This book proves that private property is responsible for most of the "social gains."
For hundreds of years, men were always so hungry that there was little room for mercy or compassion. Unwanted children were exposed to die. With the same natural resources then as now, the bark of trees, roots, worms and dead carcasses were the food of many Englishmen as late as the time of George III and the American Revolution.
Why? The chief reason was that while there was some right of private property, it was spoiled, like rotten apples in a barrel, by being mixed with socialism, communism, or "social justice." There was no incentive to breed up one's cattle because all animals ran in a "common" pasture where the scrubs and diseased cattle constantly stunted the herd. "Open field" farming prevailed, with the rotation of land holdings. This gave no incentive to fertilize and improve land. So the land ran down, and cattle and men starved in a stagnant world.

Finally, came the "Enclosure Acts." In other words, fences, private property; and then, fine cattle, sheep, horses and prosperity. On this side of the Atlantic there has never been a famine. Why? Private property.
Now England, by popular vote for nationalization and socialism, is returning to the system that cursed her for a thousand years. Some churchmen bless the program as "social justice!"

A Judge On Unions
He warned that the present drift is towards a situation of "lawlessness, chaos and ultimate anarchy." He warned also that the final outcome of such a trend will be a counter-drive to destroy unions and unionism.
Judge Goldsborough went a step farther, and set down his version of what might be called a natural law—one rising out of the general makeup of this country rather than one written into the lawbooks or evolved by judicial precedents—which can meet and solve the crisis.
What he said he believed to be the fundamental law he set forth in these words:
"As long as a union is functioning as a union it must be held responsible for the mass action of its members."
This is a principle towards which much public thinking has been drifting in recent years. Both the vetoed Case Bill and the successfully enacted Taft-Hartley Bill were drafted to define and impose a responsibility upon unions which the Wagner Act had failed to recognize.
The Case Bill attempted to impose this responsibility through court reviews and injunctions. The Taft-Hartley Bill sought to exact it through the agency of the National Labor Relations Board. As part of this responsibility, unions were called upon to do such things as file financial accounts, certify officers as non-Communist, submit to elections on strike calls, permit bargaining-agent voting upon demand, etc., etc.
Because of the antipathy of the Truman Administration to this Act, none of these provisions have ever been given a fair trial. The only clause invoked is that under which Judge Goldsborough acted, permitting the enjoining of strikes detrimental to the public welfare. And this provision merely duplicates prior authority vested in the courts which was, in fact, invoked and used against Lewis himself before the Taft-Hartley law was passed.
Whether Judge Goldsborough's comment that unions "must be held responsible" for the mass action of their membership is a principle of law which will be accepted and upheld by the higher courts—specifically, the Supreme Court—is a matter the judge himself seemed to feel was open to doubt.
Since the Supreme Court has been drifting back into one of its five-to-four moods, the decision on this point, if it is raised, may be very close.
Acceptance of the principle unquestionably would be a big step in the direction of peacefully solving the labor problem.
But it would still be only a start. The word "must" in the statement of legal principle implies coercion—and the question would still remain of how and by whom the compulsion would be applied.
Compulsive machinery far more practical than injunctions was given to the Government by the Taft-Hartley Act—and most of this is rusting unused. Congress can't enforce laws. For that matter, except in the contempt proceedings, courts themselves can't enforce their own rulings. That's up to the executive.
If the executive won't act, as has happened in so many recent labor-union matters, then what is to be done?
At some times, drastic action by Congress, possibly even impeachment, might be the advisable course to compel an executive department to enforce the laws.
This year it's simpler. The course available to the American people next November is to vote out of office those who put politics and favoritism ahead of law-enforcement—and to elect a Republican President who will run his office as it should be run, for ALL the people.

IT'S A MAD WORLD

Plato thought the ideal nation —or the ideal world—would be governed by philosophers. Dr.
Carl A. Binger, one of the nation's leading psychiatrists has a slightly different idea. He would like to see the world governed by psychiatrists.

He may be right, at that. It's a mad world.

Actually Dr. Binger didn't say exactly that. He called upon psychiatrists to "roll up their sleeves" and take part in public affairs from the community level up to the United Nations. He said up, but he may have meant down.

"Despite our busy lives," he said, "we should sit on school boards, take part in town councils, and bring our influence to bear on medical education and public education and in industry."

Yes, there is room for more sanity, and more objectivity.

Psychiatrists are needed, said Dr. Binger, as troubleshooters in the UN. They are needed in the State Department. This nation, as well as others, needs diplomats with more knowledge of psychiatry. The nation needs, he went on, more use of psychiatric principles in politics.

Undoubtedly psychiatry can help in these fields, but there is an acute shortage of psychiatrists.
Perhaps they should do more, publicly, to pass on their basic viewpoint to the public. On its non-technical side, it is simple. It involves:

Understanding and respecting the individual.

Preserving your own integrity.

It calls for the objective application of these two principles.

CANNOT DO BOTH

Acting on the heels of the official forecast that the winter wheat crop will be 860,000,000 bushels this year, second highest in history, government food exporting authorities are working toward a higher goal of wheat shipments abroad. They hope now to export 100,000,000 more bushels of wheat before June 30 than was at first planned.

To do this they may be compelled to ask Congress to reverse a measure passed earlier requiring the administration to keep in this country a minimum reserve of 150,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Those who have heard farmers in the wheat country complain about their poor wheat prospects may wonder whether it is wise for this country to shoot the works in exports of wheat. There can be no assurance that official forecasts will be correct until the wheat is in the bins. Wheat growers have all too often seen adverse weather cut down expected yields by tens of millions of bushels after the wheat was headed out.

The government is talking about stepping up exports one day and proposing to stockpile wheat for a possible emergency the next. It cannot do both. If the bottoms of the wheat bins are scraped for export, the nation will be entirely dependent upon future crops. It will be weakened tremendously in any crisis that may arise if crop failures appear.

Social Justice

—by—

SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

I want to ask two questions about "social justice." How much of it is moral? Will it promote the happiness of mankind?

Let us reduce the first question to simple terms. A robber holds up a rich man who made his money honestly by battling home runs, or by making a good radio. Is the hold-up "social justice?"

Suppose the robber is well-to-do.
He is a Robin Hood. What he steals from the rich he gives to the poor.
He is a humanitarian with a gun.

Next, take direct violence out of the question. Here are three men on an island; two, poor, and one, rich—honestly so. They form a government, and hold a town meeting, where the majority rules. By a vote of 2 to 1, they tax away the rich man's wealth in order to distribute it to themselves. They elect a sheriff to collect.

Is this social justice? If so, what makes the joint act of two men moral when the act of one man is immoral? Force, or the threat of it, is behind both the vote and the hold-up.

On the other hand, Robinson Cru-so is alone on an island. He did not make the island, or its resources. He simply got there first.
Two shipwrecked sailors swim back into the sea. Here, plainly, is a different situation. They have the same right to live as Crusoe and are not taking anything that he made. Maybe the sailors would be morally justified in resisting.

But "social justice" now goes far beyond the redress of privilege, to an attack on success and private property. It now sanctifies socialism, and the leveling of society.
This puts some members of the Christian ministry in bad company.
Dean Inge of England says: "Now that democracy has freed itself of salutary checks and balances, it stands revealed as a government by mass bribery, where the biggest bribers will usually be in power."

Read "Hunger and History," by E. F. Schattschneider, published by the Constitution, 210 East 43rd St., New York City. This book proves that private property is responsible for most of the "social gains."

For hundreds of years, men were always so hungry that there was little room for mercy or compassion. Unwanted children were exposed to die. With the same natural resources then as now, the bark of trees, roots, worms and dead carcasses were the food of many Englishmen as late as the time of George III. and the American Revolution.

Why? The chief reason was that while there was some right of private property, it was spoiled, like rotten apples in a barrel, by being mixed with socialism, communism, or "social justice." There was no incentive to breed up one's cattle because all animals ran in a "common" pasture where the scrubs and diseased cattle constantly stunted the herd. "Open field" farming prevailed, with the rotation of land holdings. This gave no incentive to fertilize and improve land. So the land ran down, and cattle and men starved in a stagnant world.

Finally, came the "Enclosure Acts." In other words, fences, private property; and then, fine cattle, sheep, horses and prosperity.
On this side of the Atlantic there has never been a famine. Why? Private property.

Now England, by popular vote for nationalization and socialism, is returning to the system that cursed her for a thousand years. Some churchmen bless the program as
"social justice!"

Proceeds of the entire sale amounted to $7501.13, and the sales of poultry, the price of which was no stronger, amounted to $1592. The offering of poultry was rather light.

Included among the livestock prices were the following: Four cows, $200 to $250; five heifers, $83 to $160; twenty-seven calves, $6 to $25.50 each and 21½ to 35½ cents a pound; two sheep, $22 each; twenty-six goats, $2.50 to $25; and three bulls, $80 to $120.

The sale of pigs was much better than usual. Of the 195 head offered, 122 changed ownership. There appeared to be a keen demand for the smaller stock. No fat hogs and brood sows were sold.

AMA Charter Given To Aeromodelers

Everett Angus, throughout his talk, stressed the point that model clubs help make friends and encourage sportsmanship among the model builders. He also said that this hobby is one that will teach the boys how to use their spare time, to work with their hands as well as with their heads, and that a busy boy is not a bad boy. "Thousands of boys from the ages of nine and up have learned how to read blueprints, operate engines and build and fly their own ships."

Mr. Angus presented the charter to Clarence Wells, president of the Aeromodelers. Mr. Wells thanked him on behalf of the model club.

Mr. Angus then chose the best model plane from those which the model club members showed. Robert Winslow's U-control model was rated as the best model, and was presented with a check for a model engine.

The following men were made honorary members of the Model Club: Archie Dalrymple, Everett

Angus, H. J. Aldsworth, John De Wald, Wilfred Thomas, Keith Rosser, Thomas Strickler, David Hertzler, Exchange Club president, stated the Exchange Club is proud of the Model club and that it has 100% backing. He explained the hope the club will "go far and excel all Bucks County clubs."

Interest on the part of the boys is keen, club members being from Bristol and vicinity, Eddington, Andalusia, and other points. One lad who attends meeting regularly resides at Florence, N. J.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (INS)—Johnstown, Pa., expects a new flood of municipal revenue this year, having just recently become the fourth U. S. city with a local income tax. The Municipal Finance Officers Association reports that the one percent levy on "salaries, wages, commissions and other compensation" and on business net profits will yield the city an estimated $500,000 annually. Philadelphia, Toledo and Columbus are the only other U. S. cities with taxes on income.

YOU ARE ENTITLED TO GOOD BUS SERVICE WE ARE ENTITLED TO A FAIR PROFIT

Ever try holding water in a sieve? It can't be done, of course! Neither can any public utility continue to pay out increasing cost-dollars and yet retain profit dollars for efficient operation. That, in short, is the reason for the new fare structure scheduled to take effect in May.

What Are the New Fares?

While the cash fares for each zone remains at the old rate of 10 cents, tickets will be sold at the new rate of 12 for $1.05.

The Relation of Service to Profits.

The Neibauer Bus Company has consistently adhered to the policy of providing a high level of public service. On-time, fixed route service must be provided to our patrons regardless of cost. Equipment has to be maintained at top-grade working efficiency in fair weather or foul. New vehicles must be purchased periodically. Other facilities for public conveyance, too, have to be maintained. Adequate returns on capital investment is the source of this service.

What Have Other Cities Done?

Since V-J Day (August 18, 1945), public transit companies in more than 400 American cities have had to resort to fare increases in order to combat the effects of inflation.

The cost of living has increased by more than 30 per cent since V-J Day, and by more than 69 per cent since 1941. Yet, throughout this period, the Neibauer Bus Company has held the old rate.

The new fare structure will mean an increase of less than 1 cent per ride to the average passenger.

A copy of the new tariff is available for public inspection at our offices, 1520 Farragut Avenue, between 9:00 a. m. and 5:00 p. m. on weekdays and between 9:00 a. m. and 12:00 noon on Saturdays.

1,000 persons, the year's attendance records were broken.

Proceeds of the entire sale amounted to $7501.13, and the sales of poultry, the price of which was no stronger, amounted to $1,592. The offering of poultry was rather light.

Included among the livestock prices were the following: Four cows, $200 to $250; five heifers, $83 to $160; twenty-seven calves, $6 to $25.50 each and 21½ to 35½ cents a pound; two sheep, $22 each; twenty-six goats, $2.50 to $25; and three bulls, $80 to $120.

The sale of pigs was much better than usual. Of the 195 head offered, 122 changed ownership. There appeared to be a keen demand for the smaller stock. No fat hogs and brood sows were sold.

Everett Angus, throughout his talk, stressed the point that model clubs help make friends and encourage sportsmanship among the model builders. He also said that this hobby is one that will teach the boys how to use their spare time, to work with their hands as well as with their heads, and that a busy boy is not a bad boy. "Thousands of boys from the ages of nine and up have learned how to read blueprints, operate engines and build and fly their own ships."

Mr. Angus presented the charter to Clarence Wells, president of the Aeromodelers. Mr. Wells thanked him on behalf of the model club.

Mr. Angus then chose the best model plane from those which the model club members showed. Robert Winslow's U-control model was rated as the best model, and was presented with a check for a model engine.

The following men were made honorary members of the Model Club: Archie Dalrymple, Everett

Angus, H. J. Aldsworth, John DeWald, Wilfred Thomas, Keith Rosser, Thomas Strickler, David Hertzler, Exchange Club president, stated the Exchange Club is proud of the Model club and that it has 100% backing. He explained the hope the club will "go far and excel all Bucks County clubs."

Interest on the part of the boys is keen, club members being from Bristol and vicinity, Eddington, Andalusia, and other points. One lad who attends meeting regularly resides at Florence, N. J.

Baker; arrangement of Spring flowers, Donald Schau, Torresdale; coffee table arrangement, Mrs. Ernest Schau, Torresdale; arrangement of flowering shrubs, Mrs. George Thomas, and arrangement of Spring flowers for hall table, Mrs. Howard C. EVERY MOVE TO BE WATCHED AT THE OLYMPICS

By Howard Berry

(I.N.S. Sports Writer)

LONDON, Apr. 23—(I.N.S.)—Every movement of the athletics of 52 nations will be watched, regulated, and timed by a "master controller," when they take to the arena at Wembley Empire Stadium in the Olympic Games track and field event this summer.

The man with the Games at his fingertips will be Donald Pain, British athletic meet organizer for the past 20 years. Pain will sit in a special control box erected on "stilts" at Wembley.

Stationed above the running tunnel at the end of the finishing stretch, Pain will be in constant contact with the floor of the arena, the dressing rooms, competitor's tunnel, scoreboard and the Olympic "advanced" headquarters at the Wembley Civic Hall.

Responsible For Organization
Since he will be responsible for the whole timing and organization of the athletic events, some of Pain's jobs will be to smooth out delays, tell teams when to come out on to the arena, receive results, make sure that the bands strike up at the precise moment for victory ceremonies and see to it that the correct national flags are hoisted.

Announcers will be housed in a sound-proof box alongside Pain. Final results will be recorded by the Olympic judges in writing and the arena manager will hand one copy to a teleprinter operator stationed in the running tunnel.

From here the results will be flashed to the scoreboard, to the Olympic headquarters and the press room.

For the Olympic marathon and cross-country events which start and end at the Wembley arena, mobile radios will be stationed at strategic points along the route of the course which cover a distance of some 26 miles.

By Edward B. Kleer,

(I.N.S. Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Apr. 23—(I.N.S.)—Italy has earmarked three hundred million lire (about half a million U. S. dollars) for the forthcoming Olympic games—a huge expenditure for a war-ravaged and poverty-ridden country.

Italian sport authorities are determined to spare no effort to achieve a fine performance by their athletes in the international summer competition in London.

There have been, however, considerable obstacles which mar the chances of the Italian participation at the London Olympiad. Years of war, invasion, misery and chaotic post-war conditions have prevented the Italian athletes from having systematic training. This has considerably lowered their efficiency.

The recent winter games in St. Moritz sounded an alarming note. The mediocre showing of the Italians caused a stir in the large sports circles on the Peninsula. But it also increased the determination to achieve better results in the summer olympics.

The policy of the Italian Olympic Committee is to send to the summer olympics a small but select team of athletes, thus laying emphasis on quality rather than quantity.

Major hopes are pinned on Adolfo Consolini and Angelo Tosi, Italian champions in the discus throw. These hopes are apparently justified by their training results.

Italians also are confident in the performances of their athletes in the 10 thousand and 50 thousand meter walks, and point out that Giuseppe Dordoni is one of their potential record breakers.

By International News Service

SYDNEY, Apr. 23—(I.N.S.)—Thirty-

four Australian men and women will represent the Commonwealth at the Olympic Games in England this summer.

The Commonwealth athletes, specially selected by the Australian Olympic Federation, are expected to arrive in England by air sometime during the latter part of May, about a month before the Olympiad begins.

This will give the Australians time to become accustomed to the English climate and their runners will have a chance to get used to cinder tracks. The Australians race on grass "down under."

Topping the list is the national sprint champion, John Treloar, 19-year-old Sydney student, who stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs 198 pounds.

Next among the track stars come John Bartram, Morris Curotta, Bill Bruce and George Every. The women track stars include Shirley Strickland and Joyce King.

Other leading choices are R. Gerrard (wrestler), S. Patterson (cyclist), R. Gower, (boxer) and J. Marshall (swimmer).

Great things are expected of John Treloar and Morris Curotta. Australian experts believe that Treloar who has clocked 9.6 seconds for the 100 yards on nine occasions, has the makings of an Olympic champion.

The grass tracks in Australia, according to expert opinion, are two yards slower than cinders for 100 yards and five yards for the 220.

This puts Treloar on the world mark of 9.4 for the 100 yards and brings his time of 20.3 seconds for the 200 yards down to 20.4 seconds, within 1.10 seconds of the world record.

Sportsmen's Briefs

BY JOE ELBERSON

Open shoot . . . this Sunday, April 25, an open blue rock target shoot will be held over the traps of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association, beginning at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Shells are available, and all clay bird shooters are invited to participate. The traps are located west of Bath road, opposite Silver Lake.

Productive . . . in spite of the advice offered by one of Bristol's venerable piscatorial sages that it would be futile to go trout fishing in the Poconos last week-end, John Johnson and I chose to ignore his counsel.

That our decision was a profitable one can be attested to by the results. We caught trout. They were big brook trout. And we brought 12 beautiful specimens home.

Yes, the weather was brisk, but not too brisk. The streams were high, but not too high. The water was not discolored or muddy, but as clear as a crystal.

Many other trips which have been made in past years with the above mentioned sage have produced far fewer fish!

Edgely meets . . . next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock members of the Edgely Rod & Gun Club will hold their April meeting in the Headley Manor Fire Station. An interesting program for sportsmen is in store. All sportsmen have a cordial invitation to attend. Representatives from several neighboring sportsmen's groups are expected to be on hand to formulate plans for the 1948 inter-club shoot.

Cause for celebration . . . the efforts of Bucks County's organized sportsmen to have the bounty restored on the red fox have borne fruit.

Here is the text of a news release from the Pennsylvania Game Commission:

"Although substantial reductions are still being made in the ranks of predatory animals after an alarming increase during war years when many trappers and game officials were in service, the Pennsylvania Game Commission, at its April meeting, decided to continue bounty payments for the fiscal year June 1, 1948 to May 31, 1949, as follows: gray fox, $4.00; red fox, $4.00; weasel, $1.00; great horned owl (adult), $4.00; fledgling great horned owl which have not left the nest, $2.00; adult goshawk, $2.00; and fledgling goshawks which have not left the nest, $1.00. No bounties will be paid for either gray or red foxes killed in the counties of Chester and Delaware where a special act of the General Assembly restricts the killing of foxes to the protection of personal property.

"The Commission's Predator Control Committee reported that for the first 10 months of the current fiscal year bounty payments on red foxes have been considerably low-

TWP JR. HIGH WINS 2ND GAME IN LEAGUE RACE

Scoring in every inning, the Bristol Township Junior High nine won its second straight game of the Lower Bucks League yesterday afternoon, defeating Lower Makefield 11-7 on the latter's field.

Paul Schmitt, Bristol Township moundsman, had rough sailing early in the game. Lower Makefield nipping him for four runs in the second frame to erase a 4-0 lead. Township compiled in the first two innings. However, from the second inning on, Schmitt coasted to victory and had 16 strikeouts to his credit. He walked three batters.

Leading the 15-hit barrage of Coach "Joe" Conturo's team were Harry Saul and Harry Eisenbrey. Saul had a pair of doubles and also two singles in five trips to the plate while Eisenbrey smacked out three singles to run his total number of hits to 8 out of 13 times at bat.

For Lower Makefield, Hunter had three hits in four times up.

"The Commission's Predator Control Committee reported that for the first 10 months of the current fiscal year bounty payments on red foxes have been considerably lower than they were a year ago (15,240 as against 24,333), and that 15,662 gray foxes have been protected as against 19,386 for the same period last year. The number of weasels (7,977) and great horned owls (11,755) presented were approximately the same and only 20 goshawks have so far been presented.

"According to the Commission, a scientific and unprejudiced Federal Aid research project is planned to determine the effects of predators upon the game population and to discover the approximate numbers of predators of various kinds which can safely be allowed in the different areas of the state without adversely affecting the game supply."

Scores . . . William Warner, whose name invariably appears among the high scorers at trap shoots, came away with top honors at the Edgely Rod & Gun Club shoot last Sunday when he turned in a perfect score of 25.

In the 25-pair doubles event William Quinn had high gun with 18.

Jack Lynn grassed 10 white flyers out of 10 in the first bird race, while the honors in the second 10-bird race were shared by V. Carney and William Quinn, each man grassing 9 flyers.

Carney and Quinn, along with Warner, shared runner-up position in the first race with 9 flyers each.

Other scores in the 10-yard blue rock event included: J. Katz, 24; Wm. Fine, 24; J. King, Sr., 24; R. Robinson, 23; J. McCue, 23; W. Quinn, 23; J. Kish, 23; G. Braden, 23; J. King, Jr., 23; J. Thompson, 23; E. Ely, 20; V. Carney, 20; J. Lynn, 19; and L. Amadio, 19.
